DETAILED ACTION

Terminal Disclaimer

1. The terminal disclaimer filed on 1/6/04 disclaiming the terminal portion of any patent granted on this application, which would extend beyond the expiration date of U.S. Patent No. 6,420,622 has been reviewed and is accepted. The terminal disclaimer has been recorded.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 1-6, 11 and 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by U.S. Patent No. 4,739,454 ("Campbell et al.").

Regarding claims 1-6 and 12 Campbell et al. disclose a drug delivery bandage comprising at least one fluid control film component (15) comprising at least one microstructure bearing surface having one or more channels (pores) therein that permit directional control of the liquid (col. 5, lines 15-18); a fluid source (14) containing at least one drug in fluid communication with the fluid control film component, wherein the drug delivery dressing is configured for delivery of the medicament to the skin; an adhesive layer (16); a backing layer (13, 34), which in the embodiment of Fig. 4, is adjacent film layer (36), and a component, carboxypolymethylene, separate from the backing and adhesive layers.

As regards claim 11, the direction of fluid transport is substantially orthogonal to the plane of the film layer.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

6. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

7. Claims 7, 8 and 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Campbell et al.

8. As regards claims 7, 8 and 10, Campbell et al. fail to teach a plurality of fluid control films. However, the examiner contends that it would have been prima facie obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to modify the device of Campbell et al. to include additional microporous film layers in order to better control the flow of the drug to the user's skin. Moreover, it has been held that duplicating the components of a prior art device is a design consideration within the skill of the art. In re Harza, 274 F. 2d 669, 124 USPQ 378 (CCPA 1960).

The applicant should additionally note the since the film layer is microporous, the pores extend from the top surface to the bottom surface of the film layer.

Allowable Subject Matter

9. Claim 9 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
